

How did we end up wasting all this love,
And sacrifice the things we're dreaming of?
When in the end it's time that limits us,
But we can't fight it, no, we can't fight it.

It's funny how we're always wanting more,
Without us knowing what we're aiming for.
We keep on spending more than we can afford,
'Til we are broken, 'til we are broken.

But I've been told that it will get better when it rains.
The flowers, they won't grow with only the good and sunny days.

'Cause it's only when it rains that we grow,
But it's only when it rains that we grow,
But it's only when it rains we grow,
But it's only when it rains that we grow,
But it's only when it—

Don't know when, don't know where it started from,
But I always knew that I'd be on the run.
My feet gets weak whenever I'm missing home,
Looks like it's fading, whatever I'm chasing.

'Cause I've been told that it will get better when it rains.
The flowers, they won't grow with only the good and sunny days.

'Cause it's only when it rains that we grow.
It's only when it rains that we grow.
It's only when it rains we grow.
It's only when it rains that we grow.

'Cause it's only when it rains that we grow.
But it's only when it rains that we grow.
But it's only when it rains we grow.
But it's only when it rains that we grow.

'Cause I've been told that it will get better when it rains.
The flowers, they won't grow with only the good and sunny days,
'Cause it's only when it rains.
