

I broke my back 'cause I thought you would too.
I'd run in circles, I thought you would too.

Maybe in another life, everything worked out alright.
And things that made this harder passed us by.

But there's no bad dream to wake up from
Know I got it bad when it's the morning and you're all that's on my mind.

If I don't have you, at least I'll still have me.
And if I don't have you, at least I'll still have me.

I never thought twice, 'cause you were my number one.
I put you first 'cause you were my only thought.

No more riding on the train, no more smoking in the ally.
Now my secrets only stay with me.

Everybody knows I'm upset, they don't even have to ask it:
They know I believed in us last week.

And if I don't have you, at least I'll still have me.
And if I don't have you, at least I'll still have me.

And there's no reason to speak badly, we just reached our end.
I will see you in parts of me, in who I was back then.

If I don't have you, at least I'll still have me.
And if I don't have you, at least I'll still have me, me, me ...
